

Anja Blacha is the Vice President of Youth at the Project Management Institute. She was born in Germany but now lives in Switzerland. Anja has a BSc Business Administration from the University of Mannheim and MA Philosophy from the University of London.

In this role, she advocates for the involvement and influence of young people in business and society, as well as their enablement through training and education. Prior to that she has worked at telecom operators Swisscom and Vodafone. She is also a mountaineer, having climbed Mount Everest and K2, and set a world record with a solo expedition to the South Pole.