

Kenneth Alexander Grodotzki

Kenneth is an experienced IT project manager, IT auditor and IT consultant. For around ten years, he has been working for companies of all sizes and across all sectors from financial service providers and logistics to manufacturing companies and telecommunication providers.

With a Big 4 background, he is now working as a contractor being specialized in information security management, IT compliance, data privacy and project management. He substantiates his experience by holding qualifications like PMP, CISA and ISO 27001 Lead Auditor.

For several years, his connection to Africa has been growing stronger. He held presentations at the ISACA conferences in Nairobi and Accra, worked three months in The Gambia and co-founded an international NGO focusing on education projects in Rwanda (including the construction of a school for underprivileged children).

He dedicates most of his time and energy to promote sustainability and to create solutions for meeting the SDGs while fostering international development.
