

Alexander (fondly called Alexis) is a construction industry professional. Trained as an Architect and Infrastructure Planner across two continents, his 1.5 decades of professional experience spans Construction Project Management and Business Development. He completed his MBA at the prestigious ESB Business School in Germany, while also completing a PhD in the sphere of Sustainable Construction at the reputable Friedrich-Alexander University, Germany; with a special focus on Frugal Innovation.

Alexis was certified as a PMI - PMP seven years ago and has been active as a PMI member (including Germany Chapter) for eight years now. Currently based in Frankfurt after six years in Stuttgart, he works as an Analyst for Sustainalytics Morningstar, a leading ESG Research and Financial Services company headquartered in Chicago. In his free time, he contributes to his personal development blog called Wealth Nuggets, and volunteers for victims of natural disasters in developing countries.