

Name: Karmany Reddy

Title: Business Leader and Sustainability Pioneer

Karmany Reddy is a business leader, pioneering digital acceleration, sustainability and identifying growth innovation. Karmany was elected to work alongside the late former South African president, Nelson Mandela, on the development of the Chatsworth Youth Centre – an initiative of the Nelson Mandela Foundation. Her commitment at an early age to the development of young leaders led to her co-founding organisations dedicated to providing awareness and guidance on issues such as drug abuse and the importance of education. Her work then extended to public campaigning through various speaking events on “leaders of the future”, inspiring youth to believe that they can be more than victims of circumstance.

Karmany has forged a reputation for delivering excellence with her vast experience in multinational corporate environments, where she has successfully delivered breakthrough innovations in Africa and Europe. She is an award-winning marketing and innovation expert, who was selected to join the 2019 UNGC Young SDG Innovators. Since then, she has joined the UN global compact where she works on the young sdg innovators programme as a digital consultant.

Pairing her experience with her strong academic background and vast experience, Karmany strives to help businesses use disruptive technologies to unlock endless potential and deliver on the United Nations’ Sustainable Development Goals.
