

Lekan Oyebamiji is a project manager and business development specialist with experience in Fintech startups, banking, research, and non-profit organizations. He is currently a sales engineer at Okra; an open finance platform like Plaid, program associate at VFA; an Edu-tech training world class product managers, a business development manager at Assurdly; a leading Quality assurance-as-a-service firm in Nigeria.

He is also a global volunteer on the PMI NextGen insight team working in partnership with several PMI departments to support building and growing engagement opportunities for “Next Generation” project managers (NextGen) and provide Next-Gen perspectives.