

Samuel Pownall is an Insight Consultant at PwC Research. Samuel is a core member of PwC's global project management and transformation research team, which has been collaborating with PMI for over two years to produce research-driven thought leadership. He is the PwC lead for the current phase of this research collaboration, which included deep dive research into key trends and opportunities in the sub-Saharan Africa region. He was the lead author of the 'PMO Success in Sub-Saharan Africa' report co-published by PMI and PwC.

Samuel specializes in research that focuses on how organizations can unlock the strategic potential of their PMOs and their project management talent, processes and technology. He graduated with a Masters in Research from Imperial College London in 2016.