

Rumbi is a MSc holder in Economics and Finance for Development and has primarily worked in using the theory of change framework and human-centered design principles in technological project management for INGOs and social enterprises within East and Southern Africa. Rumbi initially joined Viamo as a Project Manager where she designed and implemented various mobile engagement solutions for partners such as USAID, FHI 360, UNDP and WVI in a wide range of sectors.

Rumbi is passionate about human-centered design and the use of data for sound decision making for social impact and ensures all her work reflects this passion. Recently, Rumbi also joined the management team of the Design and Implementation team as Deputy Regional Manager where she is responsible for co-leading a team of project managers who are designing and implementing mobile-based projects across East and Southern Africa. Rumbi is PMP certified and has received one award from Viamo recognizing excellence in project management.